

YOU

I wish to meet someone whom likes to talk about everything. Someone who likes to learn more about how everything affects everything and we dream together as to expand our consciousness with wonderful imagination. I wish to meet someone who is not afraid as in not judgemental always trying to find an explanation and acceptance regarding the nature of human conduct and how things sometimes become what they do. I wish to meet someone a little crazy that loves to see the cosmic humour in things and has a broad perspective just like the mind of a child has. But I also wish to meet someone with sincerity and morality. Someone who takes love seriously and treasures it as in keeping it first place. I wish to meet someone who loves healthy food but ain't afraid of eating all crap one day either. I am not looking for a "daily social drinker" but not someone sober either. I wish to meet someone who cherishes nature and understands that nature only wants us well. I wish to meet someone who stays present with me as I wish to stay present with her. So we can share in loving connection and come closer emotionally. I wish to meet someone I feel I can't be without. A partner. A really close friend. The closest friend I could ever have. Which I would never own. I wish for both of us to be free together. But at the same time be exclusive for each other in various boundaries. Especially physical. I love to be intimate but I am a sensitive guy so 2 hours like an animal might not happen with me unless I take an ice bath right before all action. For me it's more important with soul connection almost making the physical disappear it seems. But also just to have a nice time in pleasure for sure. It depends on the mood. I love cozy and to just be. So how wonderful would it be to be that together. I love everything great. Who doesn't. Although sex is a part of everything and important I still wish for a loving partner and friend above all. Sex without emotion and deep spiritual connection is for me kind of pointless. And love is the whole point. Of life.

Maybe you also create music or paint, perhaps write or something else which is creative? Maybe you're also inspired about everything. Perhaps you also wish to bless everything and everyone? I do. I just wish for all to live well. I wish for peace on earth not resisting life so much. Maybe we can be a couple of love creation as to inspire the world. I feel so. I look forward to meeting you..

My one true love / All yours, Leo